B-1: Former Heisan Elementary School

An elementary school that opened in 1876 and was closed in 2016. Today, it functions as a community hub led primarily by a group formed by local residents, where events such as monthly markets are held and people from the region regularly gather.

Behind the school building lies a rich satoyama landscape. Beneath the former schoolyard runs a hand-dug river, constructed using a traditional engineering method known as kawamawashi, in which waterways are carefully rerouted and shaped.

B-2: Fukuta Community Center

One of the largest community centers in Kisarazu City, located in the Fukuta district, an area surrounded by a rich satoyama landscape.

Both indoor and outdoor spaces of the community center are available for use.

To the north of the community center lies a well-loved local route known as Cosmos Road-Issenboku, frequently used by residents of the area.

B-3: Uosō (former traditional Japanese restaurant)

A former traditional Japanese restaurant located near Igaoka Hachimangu Shrine in Yawata, Ichihara City. The building also once operated as a beach house.

Before the reclamation of Tokyo Bay, the coastline extended right up to the road in front of the site.

Six rooms on the second floor are available for use.

C: Artist in Residence

Please propose a residency-based project using the Former Satomi Elementary School as a studio.

- Residency period: from August 2026 or later, approximately one to several months
*The start date and duration will be discussed and decided individually.
- Production site: Former Satomi Elementary School
- Accommodation: In the surrounding area of the Former Satomi Elementary School

*Both the production site and accommodation will be provided free of charge.
